A dependent student for financial aid purposes whose parents refuse to support him/her and who is not eligible for a dependency override may be able to receive dependent level Unsubsidized Direct Loans only. For a student to be eligible for this provision, the following required documentation must be submitted for consideration and processing of Unsubsidized Direct Loan eligibility:

1. Submission of the 2024-2025 FAFSA. Though the results may be received by the Financial Aid Office in a rejected status due to missing parental information, the record must be submitted and pass the federal database matches conducted by the FAFSA Processing System (FPS) to determine the student's required basic eligibility for federal aid.
2. Submission of the signed and dated statement below from the student's parent certifying:
 - the parent's refusal to complete the required 2024-2025 FAFSA parental information or verification documentation; AND/OR
 - that the parent does not and will not provide any financial or in-kind (e.g., goods, services, commodities, housing, meals, etc.) support to the student and the date the parent ended any financial or in-kind support to the student.
3. If the parent refuses to sign and date the statement below, an attestation to confirm the parent's refusal to provide FAFSA or verification information and/or financial support can be obtained from a third party such as a teacher, counselor, member of the clergy, or court who has first-hand knowledge of the student/parent situation – the student alone is not sufficient. The attestation should be signed, dated, and on the third party's letterhead.

If approved, unsubsidized loans up to the maximum the student would normally be eligible to receive as a dependent student based on his/her grade level can be awarded for the application period. However, an award cannot be made for the increased amount a dependent student could normally get when his/her parent is unable to borrow through the PLUS program.
