1. WELCOME!

We are glad that you have chosen to pursue graduate studies in the Department of Modern Languages at the University of Texas at Arlington!

The M.A. in Modern Languages is a 36-hour degree designed to meet the educational needs of recent graduates as well as those in our community who desire to acquire greater proficiency in French or Spanish and greater knowledge of the fields of language, linguistics, literature, and cultural studies.

Like traditional Master's programs in a specific language, this program enables students to integrate the study of the language, literature, and culture of the countries in which French and Spanish, respectively, are spoken. However, because our program includes comparative study, it gives students the opportunity to situate their language within a larger context.

The interdisciplinary nature of our degree is unique in North Texas. Students in our program gain invaluable experience and research skills in both language-specific literature and linguistics, as well as in comparative contexts, such as translation, literary theory, and cultural history.

Through our dedicated and student-centered graduate faculty, our innovative, supportive program provides students with unique opportunities to broaden their knowledge and skills as scholars, teachers, and citizens of the world.

2. HOW TO USE THIS HANDBOOK

The purpose of this handbook is to supplement the online Graduate Catalog. It is important that students remain abreast of all deadlines and more specific instructions relating to their graduate career in our Department by being mindful of the Graduate Catalog. Our Graduate Advisor also sends emails to graduate students with reminders about deadlines and other protocols to be followed. For this reason, it is important that students check their current, active UTA email regularly.

This Quick Guide is a starting point, a place to get oriented. For further information, students should consult the Department, University, and Office of Graduate Studies web pages.

3. THE BASICS OF THE APPLICATION PROCESS

You must apply to both the UTA Office of Graduate Studies and the UTA Department of Modern Languages in order to be considered for the Master of Arts in Modern Languages. The first step is to fill out your application available on the UTA Admissions page. Your transcripts need to be sent to the UTA Office of Graduate Studies, but your letters of recommendation should be sent to the Graduate Advisor in Modern Languages at:

UTA
Department of Modern Languages
Graduate Advisor
Box 19557
Arlington, TX 76019

When you fill out your application, you will need to submit three letters of recommendation. Please download and use the official Request for Recommendation form. Please be sure to fill out the top of the form (the waiver), sign it, and give it to the person from whom you will be requesting a recommendation, along with an addressed (and stamped) envelope. Please allow two weeks for the recommender to complete the recommendation and submit it. Three recommendations are required, preferably from someone who knows your work as a student. Please note that professors are under no obligation to write a letter of recommendation. Moreover, many faculty members will not agree to write recommendations unless the right of access to the letter is waived. We recommend that students waive their right of access to the recommendation on the official UTA recommendation form.

International students will need TOEFL scores, GRE scores, as well as translations and U.S. equivalencies for their transcripts. There are many agencies that provide this service which can be found through a Google search.

4. GRADUATE TEACHING ASSISTANTSHIPS

The Department of Modern Languages has graduate teaching assistantships available for graduate students in French and Spanish. You may apply to the GTA program if you are accepted unconditionally into the MODL Master's program. Under some circumstances, a student admitted on a probationary basis may also be eligible to apply. Students accepted into the Certificate Program or admitted under a "Special" status are NOT eligible for a Graduate Teaching Assistantship.

There are two levels of graduate teaching assistantships: GTA I and GTA II. The GTA I assistantship is for students who have not completed 18 graduate hours. Normally, a GTA I assists in one course each semester and holds three tutoring hours per week, for a stipend. GTA I's are eligible for in-state tuition. All GTA I's are required to take a one-hour pedagogy course (FREN or SPAN 5102) their first year. Once a GTA has accrued 18 graduate hours, he/she can become a Graduate Teaching Assistant II.

GTA II's are the instructor of record for the courses they teach and receive a larger stipend. GTA II's are also eligible for in-state tuition.

For more information, please visit the Modern Languages' Graduate Studies website.

5. A QUICK GUIDE TO GRADUATE ADVISING

Before or after applying to our program, students will meet our Graduate Advisor. The Graduate Advisor is a full-time member of the graduate faculty who serves the department by acting as a mentor to prospective, incoming, and resident students in our program. In order to meet with the Graduate Advisor, students must make an appointment or attend his or her open office hours. It is important for students to keep this in mind because the Graduate Advisor is a member of the graduate faculty, balancing the demands of teaching, research, and service.

Before meeting with the advisor, students should review this handbook and the online catalog. This will result in more productive advising sessions.

6. THE GRADUATE FACULTY

The graduate faculty of the Department of Modern Languages is composed of professors with doctorates in their respective fields of expertise and who are active scholars. This means that each graduate class taught by our faculty reflects the latest developments and discussions in the fields of literary, linguistic, and cultural study. Below is a current list of our graduate faculty (see Department website for their biographies and research interests):

Dr. Amy Austin [Spanish: Literature]

Dr. Jinny Choi [Spanish: Linguistics]

Dr. Christopher Conway [Spanish: Literature]

Dr. Mónica de la Fuente Iglesias [Spanish: Translation and Interpreting; Linguistics]

Dr. A. Raymond Elliott [Spanish: Linguistics]

Dr. Lonny Harrison [Russian: Literature]

Dr. Aimée Israel-Pelletier [French: Literature]

Dr. Sonia Kania [Spanish: Linguistics]

Dr. Cynthia Laborde [French: Literature and Translation]

Dr. Fernando Melero-García [Spanish: Translation and Interpreting; Linguistics]

Dr. Alicia Rueda-Acedo [Spanish: Literature; Translation and Interpreting]

Dr. Ignacio Ruiz-Pérez [Spanish: Literature]

Dr. Antoinette Sol [French: Literature]

7. COURSEWORK: OVERVIEW

Students working toward their Master's degree take three kinds of courses:

1. Most of a student's coursework (27-30 credit hours) will be in their field of study (French or Spanish). These 5000-level classes are normally held Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays from 5:30 PM to 8:20 PM, and only meet once a week. For a full list of 5000-level French and Spanish courses, see the Graduate Catalog. For a list of current and upcoming offerings, please see the Course Catalog on MyMav.
2. Students are also required to take between one and three courses (3-9 credit hours) in Modern Languages (course code abbreviation MODL). Only one MODL course is required of all French students: MODL 5304: Currents in European and Latin American Literature and Thought. Students may take any one or two additional courses in MODL. MODL courses are taught in English and are populated by both French and Spanish graduate students. These interdisciplinary courses intersect thematically and methodologically with coursework in Spanish or French and will be an asset to the academic career of our students and their future professional endeavors. Typically, only one MODL course is offered a semester on Monday evenings, from 5:30 to 8:20 PM. For a full list of 5000-level MODL courses, see the Graduate Catalog. For a list of current and upcoming offerings, please see the Course Catalog on MyMav.
3. Students may also earn a limited amount of credit for courses in topics not ordinarily offered in the Department by arrangement with a professor to organize either FREN 5391 or SPAN 5391, INDEPENDENT STUDY. Independent Study courses are subject to approval by the sponsoring faculty member, the Department Chair, and the Graduate Advisor. Ordinarily, students may apply no more than six hours of 5391 to their M.A. Final Program of Work. Please note that Independent Study courses are offered only under very special circumstances.

Sometimes, graduate students are permitted to take senior-level undergraduate courses (4000-level courses taught by a member of the graduate faculty), if the Spanish or French Section Head, the Graduate Advisor, and the instructor agree to admit the student in his or her class. The Department discourages this practice.

Upon submission of transcripts and approval by French or Spanish Section Head, students may apply a maximum of nine hours of graduate course work completed at another university to their Final Program of Work. It is important for students to keep in mind that our Spanish, French, and Modern Languages courses are structured to help them pass our Master's Examination whereas courses from other Institutions do not. For this reason, it is always best for students to do all or most of their coursework in the Department of Modern Languages at UTA.

8. COURSEWORK: REGISTERING

Students may only register for classes after being cleared by the Graduate Advisor. Graduate course offerings are posted online in MyMav, and course descriptions are available in the graduate catalog.

To be cleared for registration, students must give the Graduate Advisor their student identification number and a list of the courses they plan on taking. Students should not put off advising until the last minute or come unprepared to their appointment with the advisor.

The Department of Modern Languages main office staff cannot clear graduate students to register. Students must plan ahead and work with the Graduate Advisor to gain course clearance.

Students must sign up for classes in a timely fashion. If course minimums are not met by the week before the start of classes, classes may be cancelled.

9. FACULTY EXPECTATIONS

Being a graduate student presupposes a high level of maturity, academic discipline, student engagement, and commitment to learning. Our faculty expects our graduate students to be hard-working, disciplined, engaged, and serious about the learning process. Students will be doing a great deal of reading, perhaps more than they have ever done before in their academic career, and will be expected to master new skills. In order to succeed and to develop a strong relationship with their mentors, students need to be involved in their own learning process. Most importantly, they are encouraged to appreciate the richness and value of academic study and the intellectual life. In this way, students can reap the personal rewards of studying for a Master's degree.

Finally, it is important for students to take advantage of the many resources available to them. This involves working closely with the Graduate Advisor, and proactively seeking help and advice from their professors. Successful graduate students are always well prepared, both administratively and academically, and are willing to seek constructive advice and guidance from faculty.

10. A QUICK GUIDE TO FORMS AND DEADLINES

Filling out forms and successfully meeting deadlines will be an important part of the success of each graduate student in our program. All forms are available from the Office of Graduate Studies, the Department's Graduate Advisor, and the Office of Graduate Studies' web pages. Students should keep in mind that missing deadlines will slow down their progress.

All official university forms for graduate students can be found on the UTA Graduate Admissions website.

Below, please find some approximate deadlines relating to each graduate student's career at UTA. (Since deadlines vary from year to year, each graduate student should monitor the pertinent Office of Graduate Studies' web pages and remain in touch with their advisor to ensure that they meet their deadlines.)

For specific deadlines, see the Graduate Academic Calendar.

At the Beginning: Status and Program of Work.

Your admission status can be found in the letter or email of admission sent to you by the Office of Graduate Studies. The different types of admission are unconditional admission, provisional admission, and probationary admission. The second two (provisional and probationary) require that certain conditions be met in order to gain unconditional admission. Please remember there are time constraints in satisfying the requirements for unconditional admission. If these requirements are not met, students will not be able to register for the following semester. It is the student's responsibility to not only meet the requirements but also inform the Graduate Advisor and the Office of Graduate Studies when these requirements are met.

During Your Second-to-Last Semester.

1. Submit Degree Plan Worksheet to the Graduate Advisor: Fall (around September 21); Spring (Around February 16)
2. Meet with M.A. committee to discuss the reading list

During Your Last Semester.

1. File Application for Graduation and pay the fee: Fall (mid-September); Spring (mid-February)
2. Pay the Graduation Fee: Fall (mid-September); Spring (mid-February)
3. Take Master's Examination: Fall (late November); Spring (mid-April)
4. Submit Exam Report (check Graduate Calendar for dates)

11. THE M.A. EXAM: HOW TO PREPARE AND EXAM FORMAT

The Master's Examination is the culmination of each student's work in our program. Students need to plan ahead and prepare for the three-day written examination. To succeed in passing, they need to prepare academically, and also be aware of procedures and protocols.

In their penultimate semester, students must submit a Degree Plan Worksheet. In their last semester, students must apply to graduate from the University and pay a graduation fee through MyMav. After successful completion of the M.A. Exam, students must submit a Final Master's Examination Report to the Office of Graduate Studies.

Another key administrative aspect of the M.A. Examination is the M.A. Exam committee. This committee, composed of three members of the graduate faculty, will both prepare and evaluate your exam. The committee is appointed at the start of the fall semester. You should meet and discuss your exam with the members of your committee.

For the M.A. Examination, students are tested on the contents of the Master's Reading List in each respective language. Studying the works included in the Master's Reading List is perhaps one of the most challenging aspects of completing an M.A. degree. The best way to avoid a stressful final semester is for students to be proactive and monitor their progress vis-à-vis the list, using "vacation" time to read works that have not yet been covered. By spreading their work out in that way, they will be doing themselves a great favor at the end of the process. Taking good notes in each of their courses, as well as participating, prepares students how to study and understand the complex subjects included in the M.A. Exam. In a very real sense, preparation for the Master's Exam is always taking place during each graduate course a student is taking.

According to the Office of Graduate Studies regulations, students should complete the exam during their last semester of coursework, or the semester immediately following. If the student is unable to take the exam during the last semester of coursework, s/he may take it the following semester. If the exam is not completed the semester immediately following coursework, the student must apply to be readmitted into the program. Readmission is not guaranteed.

The student does not need to be enrolled in coursework during the semester in which s/he is taking the exam, provided it is the semester immediately following the completion of his or her coursework. If the student is a GTA or a grant holder, enrollment requirements may differ. Students are responsible for finding out what the requirements are according to their situation.

The written exam is given over a three-day period: Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, from 9 am to 12 pm. French has an additional session on Monday from 2 pm to 3:30 pm. See below for exam formats in French and in Spanish.

DAY ONE 9:00 am-12:00 pm

French: Students will be asked to answer ONE question out of two in Medieval Literature and ONE question out of two in Renaissance Literature.

Spanish: Students will be asked to answer ONE question out of two in Medieval/Early Modern Peninsular Literature and ONE question out of two in Modern Peninsular Literature.

DAY ONE PART TWO: (2:00 pm-3:30 pm)

French: Students will be asked to answer ONE question out of two in the area of Modern Languages.

DAY TWO 9:00 am-12:00 pm

French: Students will be asked to answer ONE question out of two in 17th-century Literature and ONE question out of two in 18th-century Literature

Spanish: Students will be asked to answer ONE question out of two in Latin American Literature Through Modernism and ONE question out of two in Contemporary Latin American Literature.

DAY THREE 9:00 am-12:00 pm

French Students will be asked to answer ONE question out of two in 19th-century Literature and ONE question out of two in Contemporary Literature.

Spanish: Students will be asked to answer ONE question out of two in Spanish Language and Linguistics: Applied and ONE question out of two in Spanish Language and Linguistics: Descriptive

Students may not use texts or notes during the exam. All personal belongings, such as backpacks, notebooks, books, etc. will be stored in the main office of Modern Languages and cannot be taken into the testing room. In addition, all cell phones or other electronic devices are strictly prohibited. Cheating will result in failure of the examination and suspension from the program. If there is any doubt as to the integrity of the exam, the exam will be suspended and the student may apply to take the exam the following semester. Possible grades for each question on the examination will be high pass, pass, low pass, and fail.

If a student should fail the Master's exam, they may, at the discretion of their exam committee, be permitted to schedule a retake of the examination the following semester. If a student fails the second time, they will be dismissed from the program.
