ANTH 2322
GLOBAL CULTURES*
This course introduces students to key anthropological concepts. Readings for this course will focus on diverse geographical areas and incorporate a critical appreciation of the discipline of anthropology to understand cultural variation and cultural constructions of reality. Through a mix of lectures, films, and discussions this course is also designed to encourage students to develop an analytical approach to their own everyday practices.
*Required course for BA in Anthropology.

ANTH 2339
INTRODUCTION TO ARCHAEOLOGY*
How do we know what happened in the past when we don’t have any written or oral records of what occurred? The answer is archaeology--the scientific study of the past through the material remains of past human activity. In this course you will learn about the changing social, cultural, and environmental dimensions of the human past and the methods and theories archaeologists use to uncover this past.
*Required course for BA in Anthropology.

ANTH 3300
DEBATES IN CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY
Explores core concepts, critiques of past applications, and current challenges of theory and practice in cultural anthropology.

Course limited to 20 seats – enroll early!

Fulfills the Theory requirement for the BA in Anthropology.

T/TH 8 – 9:30 AM
Dr. Ritu Khanduri (Khanduri@uta.edu)

ANTH 3332
FOOD AND CULTURE
This course considers the relationship of food and culture as it affects human biology and health, influences the course of human history and shapes our experience as individuals and as members of communities. The scope of the course will be broad, including food production, exchange, and consumption from biological, cultural, ecological and political-economic perspectives. We will also address food patterns and beliefs in terms of history, meaning, and symbolism. We will spend some time on topics such as the development of cuisines, food preferences, food and economic development, world hunger, food and religion, globalization, and food bioterrorism.

M/W 2:30 – 3:50 PM
Dr. Amy Speier (Speier@uta.edu)

ANTH 3338
COMPARATIVE KINSHIP AND FAMILY SYSTEMS
Variation in kinship and family systems from crosscultural and evolutionary perspectives. Structure, function, and dynamics of kinship and family systems as adaptations to diverse ecological, social, and historical circumstances. Implications of this approach for understanding kinship and family in American society also addressed.

MWF 10:00 – 10:50 AM
Dr. Joci Ryan (jcryan@uta.edu)
ANTH 3349
ANTHROPOLOGY OF GLOBALIZATION

The forces of economic globalization now reach every corner of the world to the point that few societies have been untouched by their impact. This course examines the forces that drive globalization and their repercussions upon local communities around the world. It examines how economic globalization affects the lives of real people in developing and industrialized countries as well as in small-scale societies traditionally studied by anthropologists.

T/TR 9:30 – 11 am
Dr. Christian Zlolsinski  (chrisz@uta.edu)

ANTH 3390/ WOMS 4305
TRANSNATIONAL FEMINISM

This course will explore transnational feminist frameworks and the heterogeneous processes used in the cultural construction of gender in a global context. Framed by the critiques of “universal sisterhood” by Third World feminists, this course challenges the conventional Western claim that feminism began here and then spread elsewhere. Centering non-Western perspectives, we analyze the intersectional inequalities experienced by women in different cultural contexts and explore the workings of power and gender that shape the lives of women around the world.

SYNCHRONOUS ONLINE
T/TH 3:30 – 4:50 PM
Dr. Donna Akers  (donna.akers@uta.edu)
ANTH 3308
FORENSIC ANTHROPOLOGY

Forensic anthropology is an applied subfield of biological anthropology that provides expert analysis of skeletal remains from a medico-legal setting by utilizing methods developed from skeletal biology, archaeology, and the forensic sciences. Students will gain an understanding of the forensic anthropologist’s role in death investigations and be introduced to the theory and applied techniques utilized to recover and identify individuals. This course will be taught entirely online, through UTA’s Canvas site.

Dr. Christian Crowder, a Board-Certified Diplomat of the American Board of Forensic Anthropology, has experience in the US and internationally, and is currently the forensic anthropologist for the Tarrant County Medical Examiner’s Office.

ANTH 3311.001 / BIOL 3313 / HONR
HUMAN ADAPTATION AND THE CONCEPT OF RACE

In this course, the study of modern human biological variation is placed in the context of the history of the race concept. In the first half of the course, we will review changing perspectives on human variation, focusing especially on the last 250 years. In the second half of the course, we examine physiological adaptations to environmental stresses among a variety of human populations and the implications of recent genetic research. Part history of science and part biology, this course explores how anthropologists today and in the past have viewed variation within our species.

MWF 11:00 – 11:50
Dr. Shelley Smith
(slsmith@uta.edu)

ANTH 4406 / BIOL 4406
HUMAN OSTEOLOGY

A complete understanding of the human skeleton is essential to the study of any sub-field of biological anthropology, including bioarchaeology, human anatomy, paleoanthropology, forensic anthropology, primatology, and related fields. This class is an intensive introduction to the structure, physiology, and functional morphology of the human skeletal system, with a laboratory emphasis on identification of whole and fragmented bones. Students study the skeleton in the context of muscular, vascular, neurological, and other systems. In addition, students are briefly introduced to bioarchaeological issues, including the analysis of sex, age, and health. This class is also recommended for students planning a career in the health professions.

Course limited to 20 seats – enroll early!

Fulfills Method requirement for BA in Anthropology. Counts toward COLA’s certificate in Medical Humanities

T/TH 12:30 – 1:50 PM (Lecture – section 001)
T/TH 2:00 – 2:50 PM (Lab – Required, section 002)
Dr. Naomi Cleghorn (Cleghorn@uta.edu)
ANTH 3371
ARCHAEOLOGY OF GREECE

Material evidence relevant to our understanding of classical Greek culture and society from the collapse of the Mycenaean Empire through the Hellenistic Period (ca. 1200-31 B.C.). Examination of the magnificent (temples, sculpture, athletic monuments, ships) and the mundane (domestic architecture, pottery, crafts, coinage, inscriptions, architecture and artifacts of civic life, burials). Archaeological evidence will be considered in light of contemporary historical sources.

M/W 4 – 5:20 PM
Dr. Martin Gallagher (Martin.Gallagher@uta.edu)

ANTH 4358.001 / ART 3316
ANCIENT EGYPTIAN AND NEAR EASTERN ART

We explore the major art and architectural history of ancient Egypt, including relationships to the Near East and Mesopotamia. Religious, political, economic, and social ideologies feature prominently in discussions of art traditions. We also critically consider ways that the ancient Egyptian past is used and/or misused today.

M/W 2:30 – 3:50 PM  Dr. Leah McCurdy  (leah.mccurdy@mavs.uta.edu)

ANTH 4358.002 / ART 3320
ART OF THE ANCIENT AMERICAS

Explores the art, architecture, and archaeology of the Americas from the Paleoindian period through European colonization across North, Central, and South America. Students critically consider the biases of scholarship, colonial legacies, and contemporary perspectives.

M/W 5:30 – 6:50 PM  Dr. Trenton Barnes

ANTH 4358.003 / ART 4396
ARTS OF THE SILK ROADS

From glittering murals nestled among the dunes and oases of Central Asia, to the majestic Buddhist sculptures of cave-temples along the Eastern coast of China, this course explores the rich artistic traditions that spread across the Old Silk Roads during the medieval period. Together, we will travel through the major cultural and artistic hubs of the Silk Roads, unpacking global and historical contexts across Asia through the remarkable enduring monuments of the period. As we progress through time and space, we will also consider important contemporary issues surrounding the Silk Roads. These include the ownership of cultural heritage, repatriation of antiquities, and the legacy of the Silk Roads in global trade.

T/TR 9:30 – 10:50 AM
Dr. Fletcher Coleman (Fletcher.Coleman@uta.edu)

These courses taught under the special topics number (ANTH 4358). Look for the different section numbers!
ANTH 1200 / SOCI 1200
PERSONAL AND PROFESSIONAL SUCCESS IN THE SOCIAL SCIENCES

A first-year experience course for new students and new transfer students interested in a career in the social sciences. Provides the necessary foundation for success in a college environment while balancing personal and/or work obligations. Orient students to life on campus, demonstrates how to leverage campus resources to achieve career and academic goals, and emphasizes engagement outside the classroom through collaborative and co-curricular opportunities.

Fulfills the University requirement for UNIV 1101 or UNIV 1131.
