

Initial Planning Form

Thank you for your interest in participating in the Center for Distance Education's (CDE) online course development process. Creating and teaching a high-quality online course is an investment in student success. A well-designed course fosters meaningful learning experiences, keeps students engaged, and ensures they have the tools and resources they need to thrive academically. As a result of developing your course with CDE, your course will:

- Use the latest technologies and pedagogies in online learning.
- Meet standards outlined in the Quality Matters rubric.
- Follow federal guidelines and requirements for online education.
- Adhere to ADA guidelines, ensuring accessibility for all learners.
- Comply with UTA's institutional policies and standards.

Directions

Please complete the following form in its entirety on your own or with your instructional designer during your first meeting. Email the completed form to your instructional designer. If you don't have an instructional designer yet, you can send it to the Instructional Design Team at cdeid@uta.edu.

Timeline

This section outlines the schedule for course development between the instructor and the instructional designer. Please create a detailed timeline outlining when course materials will be completed and ready. When planning your timeline, consider factors such as research and grant deadlines, course workload, and professional commitments.

Provide specific dates and the corresponding content to be delivered.

By maintaining and adhering to this timeline, we can ensure the course remains on track to be completed on time. If content delivery is delayed by more than two weeks, relevant stakeholders will be notified to address the situation.
