

2016-2017 HONORS COLLOQUIA

"Will a Robot Be Your Next Friend?"

Professor Julienne Greer, Department of Theatre Arts

Robots are becoming increasingly common in U.S. households. Is that a good thing, and how will we relate to them? Join us for the next Honors Colloquium, in which Dr. Julienne Greer of the Department of Theatre Arts will explain how the methodologies from her field are being used to improve human-robot interaction (HRI). You may even have a chance to meet NAO, the Department's very own research robot.

Noon

Friday, December 2, 2016

Carolyn A. Barros Reading Room, 100-A College Hall

Pizza and Beverages Provided

n. pl. col·lo·qui·a (-kwē-ə)

1. An informal meeting for the exchange of views.
2. An academic seminar on a broad field of study, usually led by a different lecturer at each meeting.

The Honors Colloquia are a series of informal academic discussions of current research by faculty, staff, and students of the Honors College.