

2016-2017 HONORS COLLOQUIA

"The i'Mpossible Project': Storytelling Meets Research"

Professor Regina Praetorius, School of Social Work

How do people use story-telling to overcome crisis and trauma, and in turn help others learn to survive? In the second Honors Colloquium of 2016-2017, Dr. Regina Praetorius will discuss her collaboration with actor/writer Joshua Rivedal in the i'Mpossible Project. Come find out how she and other researchers use the qualitative analysis of auto-ethnographies to develop better tools for health, mental health, and education professionals.

Friday, October 21, 2016 Noon
Carolyn A. Barros Reading Room, 100-A College Hall
Pizza and Beverages Provided

n. pl. col·lo·qui·a (-kwē-ə)

1. An informal meeting for the exchange of views.
2. An academic seminar on a broad field of study, usually led by a different lecturer at each meeting.

The Honors Colloquia are a series of informal academic discussions of current research by faculty, staff, and students of the Honors College.