Spring Faculty & Associates Meeting

Tuesday, April 26, 2022
4:00pm - 6:00pm
Rio Grande Ballroom
E.H. Hereford University Center

The President and Provost invite faculty to come celebrate as they recognize teaching and research award winners, outstanding advisors, recipients of Faculty Development Leave and many others.

Please plan to attend!
Heavy Hors d'oeuvres will be served.

Call for Agenda Items!

Please send any agenda items for the Spring Faculty and Associates Meeting to Toni Sol amsol@uta.edu by April 25th.

Faculty Designating Low-Cost Courses

The Faculty Course Schedule page in MyMav now has a dropdown menu next to each course where you can designate your course as Low Cost Course Materials (less than $25) or Zero Cost Course Materials. If your course materials cost less than $25 please use this feature to let your students know. This will help our students! If the required materials cost more than $25 there is nothing that you need to do because that is the default setting.

Join the Summer Writing Adventure!

Join us for the 6 week long Summer Writing Adventure. We will discuss writing strategies and work in writing groups to move our papers and grant proposals forward. Participants in last year's writing adventure reported that it helped them keep on schedule and they made new friends. The Summer Writing Adventure is open to all faculty, but we encourage all Assistant Professors and Associate Professors to join to help build your dossiers for promotion. We will start meeting on May 23 and end on June 27. Complete out this interest form here.

DEI Workshops

UTA's Unconscious Bias Workshop Presenter, Dr. Jandel Crutchfield, Ph.D., Director of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion, Assistant Professor School of Social Work, will be hosting two workshops. Both events relate to implicit bias and cultural awareness in the workplace; these events are open to Senior level administrators and are a part of the diversity certificate program. These sessions will count as Part I of Faculty Search Workshop.

Unconscious Bias: Not Just Smoke and Mirrors

April 25, 2022, from 1:00 p.m.-2:00 p.m., at Trinity Hall, Room 104.
Audience: Open to all faculty; (maximum attendance 30)

Unconscious Bias: Not Just Smoke and Mirrors

May 2, 2022, from 1:00 p.m.-2:00 p.m., at Pickard Hall, Room 223.
Audience: College Deans, Assistant/Associate Deans; Chairs, and Co-chairs.

Attendance is free. Light snacks will be served.

Cite Black Women: The Politics and Call to Action

The Center for Theory presents Dr. Yasmiyn Irizarry to encourage discourse about the institutional biases at play in research and the promotion process.

Join us for a discussion about citation practices and academic careers. Cite Black Women is a collective that calls on academics to critically reflect on their everyday practices of citation and start to consciously question how they can incorporate black women into the core of their work. Citation practices create institutional barriers and result from differences in research interests that connect to a researcher's identity.

The event will take place on May 2, 4 PM, at the College of Architecture, Planning and Public Affairs (CAPPA) Building, room 204.

Faculty Advisory Network on Sustainability 2022 Cohort

The office of Sustainability is requesting applications for the 2022 Cohort of the Faculty Advisory Network on Sustainability. Faculty whose research, teaching, and service touches on at least one of the three pillars of sustainability – social, economic, and environmental aspects of sustainable systems – make up this network. The cohort participants will learn to integrate sustainability in teaching, curriculum development, service learning, and faculty research by engaging with network of faculty experts on campus in a collaborative environment. The Cohort workshop is scheduled for June 1-2, 2022. Sign up form For questions, contact Meghna Tare at mtare@uta.edu.

Call for ACUE Fall Cohort

In partnership with the Association of College and University Educators (ACUE), we offer the Course in Effective Teaching Practices to a limited number of faculty participants. The Course is the first course designed for higher education faculty that leads to a nationally recognized Certificate in Effective College Instruction endorsed by the American Council on Education (ACE). This opportunity to participate will be offered at no cost to you or your department. Details can be found here. Applications are due by May 31, 2022.
