Faculty Affairs News 122 - APRIL 18, 2019

Canvas Basics

Students are buzzing about Canvas at UTA and faculty are encouraged to engage in building a course that includes, at a minimum, the course syllabus, assignments and grades. More than 90 percent of courses are being offered through CIDE. Faculty can also enroll in a self-paced online course through the Center for Instructional Development and Education (CIDE). Faculty can post their syllabus on Canvas, and a process for migrating it to Digital twilight is currently being tested. Please contact canvas@uta.edu with your questions, or visit us at canvas.uta.edu.

New SFS Tool: SmartEvals

A streamlined and more sophisticated Student Feedback System, SmartEvals, is now available to all faculty. Please review these tips to improve response rates:

- Remind students that the evaluation process has begun and they need to receive daily emails which will allow them to complete the surveys. The survey period is 2 weeks before the end of the course (10 weeks) and one week for dynamic dated courses.
- Faculty can log into MyEvalCenter and click the “QR code” link for their class(es). Print the page that is then displayed and distribute it to students. Using their mobile devices, students can scan the code and complete the evaluation right in class!
- Give students a few specific examples of how you used the feedback from past course evaluations. For example: “Last semester the evaluations said I should make better use of the course website, and that is why this year I have been posting notes online.”
- Remind students that their responses are completely anonymous, and that instructors will only see results after grades are released.

For questions, please contact Dr. Andrew Pagel, UTA Director of Student Evaluations and Surveys andndrew.pagel@uta.edu or (817) 272-3418.
