National Women’s Equality Day
August 26, 2021

The History of Women’s Equality Day

At the behest of Rep. Bella Abzug (D-NY), in 1971 and passed in 1973, the U.S. Congress designated August 26 as “Women’s Equality Day.” The date was selected to commemorate the 1920 certification of the 19th Amendment to the Constitution, granting women the right to vote. This was the culmination of a massive, peaceful civil rights movement by women that had its formal beginnings in 1848 at the world’s first women’s rights convention, in Seneca Falls, New York.

#WOMENSEQUALITYDAY

The observance of Women’s Equality Day not only commemorates the passage of the 19th Amendment, but also calls attention to women’s continuing efforts toward full equality. Continue reading here.

Current Equality Issues

- Demanding equal pay with men and economic empowerment
- Protecting reproductive rights, including both access to birth control and abortion
- Equal opportunities in the workplace and education
- Eliminating suppression, oppression and violence towards women
- Raising awareness of gender-based discrimination and stereotyping

YOU MATTER

Hi Everyone!

Welcome back to another semester in the School of Social Work! If you’re new here, welcome for the first time! We are so glad to have you! If this is your first time reading the weekly newsletter, the You Matter section is here because…well, YOU MATTER!

This newsletter has essential reminders and helpful information needed to progress toward your degree. The “You Matter” section has a similar goal. We (Craig and Sarah) will discuss crucial social work practice/education and wellbeing. We discuss self-care throughout any social work curriculum, but sometimes it doesn’t sink in until we have those deeper conversations with ourselves.

Craig and I are truly passionate about creating a community of care and challenging society’s current work ethic. Though we will never tell you what you “should” do, we do invite you to challenge your perspectives. If you’d like to talk further about any of our posts, we will meet in the courtyard in the middle of the social work buildings on the first Wednesday of every month from 11:00 AM – 12:30 PM.

So, with all of that being said, it feels a little disingenuous to fill this post with complete excitement. Of course, I am excited that you all are entering a semester where you’ll learn more about yourselves and social work! However, I’m also feeling the drain of living in a pandemic since the beginning of 2020. No matter what we’re looking forward to, we are also exhausted. I hope that you all honor BOTH feelings if you have them. It’s ok to look forward to the future AND feel frustration/exhaustion/etc. about our current situation. Learning to accept those uncomfortable thoughts and feelings makes space in your mind for new coping methods and helps you let go of any unhelpful thoughts telling you that you have to live your life a certain way.

Before the pandemic, I used a paper planner and had my schedule documented by the hour. That was before the collective trauma we experienced. My brain is usually in a fog now, and it’s hard for me to focus. It’s hard to take in some days, but once I accepted this change, I’m starting to feel more like myself, even if it’s a new self. I threw out my planner (best believe I kept the cute stickers) and traded it in for a notepad where I make a daily to-do list. Then I make a not-to-do list as well. I know what to write on these lists because I ask myself these questions in the morning:

- What is my energy level today?
- What do I need to do for myself?
- What do I need to do for others?
- What can wait?

When I ask myself these questions, I struggle with the last question. I have all of those thoughts that go through my head about letting people down if I let some things wait. I have to remind myself that yes, someone else may be disappointed, but sometimes that’s necessary, so I don’t let myself down Every. Single. Day.

If life is looking different for you these days, I challenge you to embrace it. Step into the new and find what works for you now. Stay curious with yourself, and you’ll likely find inspiration that will make life feel a little less exhausting. Craig and I would love to hear about your journey towards self-awareness and wellbeing. Feel free to drop us an email or meet up with us on the first Wednesdays of the month.

If you like You Matter posts and want to explore them more deeply, please consider joining us for a Wounded Healers meeting. You can find us on Teams!

Required COVID-19 testing and new protective measures for Fall 2021 (English and Español) (uta.edu)

Classroom density, updated info from university on testing and return to campus

FUNDING

The University announced recently that students charged Distance Education (DE) fees for fall 2021 online courses may be eligible for financial aid if they are facing extraordinary educational and economic challenges due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Additional information, including a University online application form, will be available after September 13 for regular session courses.

The University announcement mentioned only the $25 per credit hour DE Fee. For students taking online School of Social Work classes, you are charged an additional $65 per credit hour DE Fee. If you are determined eligible by the University to receive financial aid for the $25 per credit hour of the DE fee and you are a School of Social Work student, then the remaining balance of $65 per credit hour will also be covered. This is in effect for as long as the University continues this waiver program or thru the Spring 2022 semester, whichever comes first.

If you are having challenges paying tuition and fees before fall classes start, it is suggested that you submit a request to the University to be on a payment plan.

If you have questions about your bill please contact Student Accounts.

COVID-19 Testing

All students, faculty and staff coming to campus in any capacity for the fall 2021 semester must provide a viral test (antigen test or nucleic acid amplification test such as a PCR) by Sept. 8, 2021.

UTA has a number of on-campus testing options that meet the required criteria and are free. In addition, the results from our on-campus options will be automatically reported to UTA with no further action required on your part. Results from off-campus testing sites will be accepted, though you will not be reimbursed for costs. You will be able to upload and submit your COVID-19 test results from off-campus testing sites to a digital portal that will be made available to campus in the coming days. Please continue to monitor your UTA email and the UTA COVID-19 Information website for updates.

Students already living or otherwise present on campus may submit their results as soon as the portal becomes available, but no later than Sept. 8. Negative results from tests conducted more than 72 hours before the portal is made available will not be accepted.

Remember, if you test positive, please follow the CDC’s isolation protocols and submit the Personal Diagnosis Form. UTA facilities will be made available for on-campus residents who need to quarantine.
