If you do not know who your assigned GSL is, you may email Makita Johnson (emily.rappaport@mavs.uta.edu) or reach out to your USL / GSL by email or Teams.

Options are listed below:

- Advanced Mental Health/Substance Misuse
- Advanced Children & Families
- Advanced CAP
- Advanced Aging & Advanced Health

BSW and BSSUT Students

There's an old saying "sticks and stones may break my bones, but words can never hurt me." Have you ever said words like these to yourself? Have you ever said these words to yourself or someone else?

There's an old saying "sticks and stones may break my bones, but words can never hurt me." Have you ever been told you wear your heart on your sleeve? Or that you take things too seriously? Words like these can impact you. Have you ever thought about the impact of words on you or others?

There's an old saying "sticks and stones may break my bones, but words can never hurt me." Have you ever thought about the impact of words on you or others?

With love,

Mia Cozzarelli -

I plan on getting my certification after graduation and working directly with patients through the community. I have always admired their work and knew that this is the path I wanted to continue my academic career by getting my masters, I plan on pursuing a concentration in women's rights in Mexico, India, and several countries in Africa.  As a thank you for her contributions to the civil rights movement, she established the YWCA's Center for Racial Justice, founded the National Women's Political Caucus, and advocated for voting rights, literacy education, and unemployment. As a civil rights activist, she became a leader of the Civil Rights Movement. Dr. Height began her lifelong work of advocacy as a social worker and has dedicated her life to social justice and women's rights. She is a role model for women everywhere.

With love,

Mia Cozzarelli -

The University of Texas at Arlington

Love and Light,