Spring 2022 News Update

Professor retiring after 33 years

Dr. Norm Cobb, associate professor and former head of the School of Social Work's Community Service Center from UTA School of Social Work in 1989, will be recognized next month with the President's Award for Teaching Excellence. This is his 11th President's Teaching Award record and marks the end of his many years of service to the university, a significant contribution to academia.

"Norm is the quintessential clinician," said Dr. Katherine Herford, Associate Dean for Research and Faculty Affairs. "He is known for his outstanding classroom instruction, as deemed by both students and peers. He has also been noted for his dedication to social work, as well as the university.

Dr. Cobb headed the Community Service Center from 1988-1991 and was the director of the Center for Social Work Education and Community Advocacy from 1992-1994. He was also the director of the Center for Community Service and Social Work Education from 1994-1998.
